

Potential Online NCLB Vendors

The information in the chart below is an attempt to give you some of the highlights of each school approved online vendor as a "starting place" in your search. Each online vendor has its own unique interface with the schools they service. Their enrollment procedures can be complicated and sometimes include a fair amount of detail. Please be patient with your charter school as it usually takes a full one-year cycle to encounter all of the issues that can come up with each vendor's particular requirements. There is NO online vendor that can supply the wet labs for the lab sciences (biology, chemistry, physics) to meet UC's lab requirements. Therefore, all online science courses must be take as "Conceptual Biology", "Conceptual Chemistry", and "Conceptual Physics". These conceptual science courses, if they meet the course description for our school's A-G science course description, can qualify as an A-G Elective. The information in the chart below is as accurate as we were able to gather at this time, but know that you need to research these online vendors very carefully before enrolling a student and that the information provided can change at any time, so you should always re-check it. One very important thing to find out when learning about one of these vendors, is how the tests are given and who does the grading. Many of these online vendors will have you, the ES, supervise and monitor the chapter and mid-term/final exams. Other vendors offer grading services for a fee. Other vendors have a built in grading management system that does the grading for you. Grading and monitoring tests can be time-consuming if you have many students with that vendor, so consider carefully before using vendors that have those requirements. These are often, however, the same vendors that have the least expensive course prices and the most extensive course offerings. So many things need to be taken into consideration, when making your online course vendor selection. We are fortunate to have so many options available for our students.
